

Developmentally appropriate childcare – an event at the psychology club

Is daycare good for children? What are the benefits of daycare for children? How do you know a daycare center is good? What is the impact of the quality of daycare on developmental outcomes? These questions have stimulated research and raised controversy as conflicting findings have been reported. If you would like to know more about early childhood programs, please join us at the psychology club for a workshop with Heather Brown, director of the Early Childhood Learning Center at LaGuardia. Heather Brown will talk about common issues encountered by professionals in early childhood programs, such as discipline, separation anxiety, and developmentally appropriate practice. The workshop will take place next Wednesday April 25 at 2: 15 in room E- 107. Pizza and refreshments will be served.
